CLOSER LOOK: English Channel homebred looked like he might have really needed that debut at Saratoga while running in spots and then coming up empty in the stretch; got a couple of months off after that run and returned to show improved speed en route to an upset maiden win last time last time over next-out winner C'Est Magnifique; draws well on the inside for the step up with Irad returning; appears to have some potential

 Sprinted in the turf debut two back and ran well in that spot while putting in a good finish behind a front-running winner; stretched out last time and took advantage of an easy trip on the lead to break his maiden with an 81 Beyer; has clearly taken to turf and isn't a need-the-lead type based on the effort two back; not out of this.

 NY-bred is out of a dam whose six career wins all came sprinting but made his debut going long and finished gamely after sitting a perfect trip in behind the lead; don't think he beat the strongest field in that spot but he was professional in victory and can take another step forward here for Clement - past five years, debut winner, second career start, turf, route: 7 for 28, 25%, $2.92 ROI, 3 for 8 in stakes races in that sample (38%, $3.60 ROI).

 Was a debut winner sprinting vs. fellow state-breds at Saratoga and he looked good that day while easily powering clear late, despite an awkward lead change; has made all four starts since then vs. open stales rivals and has simply found those races to be a bit too tough while doing his best each time; improved to a new top figure last time after a good trip in the Awad; tries again but likely needs to catch a break or two in order to strongly contend.

Half-brother to stakes-winning turf horse Dakota Gold easily won his turf debut vs. NY-breds, though he had a perfect trip that day with a bunched finish behind him; stepped into the Grade 2 Pilgrim last time and wasn't good enough after spending much of that race between horses; might be getting some class relief here but still needs to improve.

Filly is a maiden on the way in and faces a distance test after three straight starts sprinting, including a no-threat try in the Grade 3 Matron; came up just short in the two MSW losses, though she earned a field-best 85 Beyer while narrowly missing last time; the figures say he fits here but has much working against her as she stretches out for the first time and faces colts; for speed-figure players only.

Pulled off an upset while winning his Colonial debut from the back in a race that went to closers; showed improved speed in the Awad last month and stayed gamely to the end while only getting closed down late by favored Freedom Trail; has a chance to go off at a fair price once again and he is not one to overlook in this spot.

Liked the debut win from this gelding despite the low figure, as he got in at the start to wind up at the back of that field early, and wound up putting in a strong finish after coming wide to the stretch; got unlucky in the Nownownow two back when blocked in the stretch while trying to get his momentum up, before finishing well for third; landed a good trip last time after rating the break, though he was put in tight as that field came into the stretch and could only manage 4th; puts blinkers on and is eligible to improve again.

Did some running while on the chase in his career debut sprinting on dirt; improved when stretched out on turf to break his maiden with a game stretch run second time out, and he ran even better last time while overpowering that entry-level allowance field after sitting a good trip; lone two-time winner in the field has the outside draw to overcome but he is clearly a contender in this spot. -Mike Beer

CLOSER LOOK: This 8YO loves to win races, but he's achieved most of his success below the graded stakes level; therefore, it was pretty encouraging to see him run so well in the Bold Ruler two back when he contested an honest pace and battled gamely all the way to the wire, beaten less than a length; came back just 12 days later to easily beat starter allowance foes; don't be too concerned with the trainer switch, as assistant Faith Wilson is deputizing for Jeffrey Englehart while he serves a suspension; could be the first to inherit the lead when likely leader Bezos comes back to the field, and you know he'll fight to hold it; contender.

 This colt has been pretty popular with the bettors throughout his career, never going off at odds higher than 5-1; that could change here, as his recent form leaves something to be desired in this competitive field; finished behind a few of today's rivals in the Bold Ruler last time; while he didn't get an ideal trip that day, he still had nothing to offer once he found a clear path in the stretch; just feels like he's regressed ever since then Maryland Sprint score earlier in the year; prefer others.

Will be making his first start against stakes company since finishing 5th in the 2021 Tom Fool; has been the picture of consistency this year, hitting the board in all 7 starts despite changing barns a few times; ran one of his best races first off the claim for Mike Miceli last time, just getting outdueled to the wire after challenging the winner in deep stretch; has speed but doesn't need to be in front, so he should sit a good trip; former claimer fits pretty well here based on that last speed figure, but he has to turn the tables on Synthesis and deal with some classier foes; still has something to prove.

Speedy 4YO never really panned out when campaigned by Bob Baffert early in his career; broke a string of off-the-board finishes two back when dropped in for the $16k claiming tag, as he ran away from an overmatched group; proved that impressive score was no fluke last time when he made it two in a row off the claim, stepping up against starter allowance company; however, now the waters get much deeper; he does possess the speed to contest the pace, but he'll have to set faster fractions than he has in his last couple of starts; looking elsewhere.

Was pretty game last time, fending off the late challenge of today's rival Happy Farm despite getting passed by that foe in deep stretch; registered the best Beyer of his career; however, both he and Happy Farm benefited from outside trips that day over a course that was favoring paths well off the rail; didn't get many chances to sprint early in his career, but he's now won 3 of his last 4 starts sprinting; comes into this race in solid form, though this will mark his first ever start without Lasix; mixed signals.

Took him a while to get started this year, only kicking off his season in July; however, it seems like he's returned as an improved horse as a 6YO; arguably should have been 3-for-3 to start this year, as he was unlucky to lose that stakes at Colonial in August, fouled between horses in mid-stretch; since then he came back to win impressively at Laurel before just missing in the Bold Ruler last time; sat a pretty good trip that day but just couldn't quite get on terms with the winner in the last furlong; gets a rider switch to Irad Ortiz this time, but that could negatively affect his price; contender.

This 3YO has been quite a claim for his connections; picked up for just $40 on New Year's Eve last year, he's earned $341k in 2022; was picking up pieces in graded stakes throughout the summer while facing some very tough competition; didn't get the smoothest trip two back in the Gallant Bob and rebounded nicely last time to win the Bold Ruler over some rivals he meets again here; loved how game he was in the closing strides of that recent victory; is drawn well outside of his main rivals and is proven over this track; he's a closer, but proved last time that he doesn't need to come from that far out of it; the horse to beat. -David Aragona

Improving 3YO just looks a little out of his element at this level; actually ran quite well to win that N1X allowance last time, as he was never inside, going 3-wide around every turn while beating a horse who rode the rail throughout; that said, he was meeting a much weaker field that day and has never been competitive against a group of this quality; prefer others.

Brown's other entrant finished behind his stablemate Highest Honors in the Sycamore, but he had the slightly tougher trip; was never really on the rail while riding the 2- to 3-path; appeared to have some run in the stretch, but got blocked in the last furlong just as he was starting to hit his best stride; appeared to cross the wire with something left in the tank; has been steadily improving all year since returning as a gelding this season; has more tactical speed than he displayed last time and should sit a good trip from this inside draw as long as he breaks cleanly; contender.

It was quite the surprise when he hit the board at 67-1 last time in the Turf Classic, as his recent form hadn't been particularly compelling; though, he was switching back into the barn of Tom Albertrani, with whom he had started his career; sat a pretty good trip stalking a moderate pace in a race where forwardly placed runners fared best; however, he still did well to hang on for 3rd, earning the best Beyer of his career; drew a good post position here, so he may have another good trip coming his way; just don't expect to get as big a price as he's been in recent starts.

4Y0 seeks his 3rd victory in a row after marching through his first two allowance conditions in succession; took him a while to clear that N1X hurdle despite running well all year long; the stretch-out in distance appeared to be the key to success for him, as he had no trouble handling added ground when he tried this distance in September; that said, he's been beating weaker competition as of late and needs to step it up from a speed figure standpoint if he's to get anything here.

He's 2-for-2 this season, earning victories on two different continents; campaigned overseas until this summer, he followed up an impressive victory in Germany with a facile score against overmatched foes at Saratoga in July; that was also a subpar N1X for the level; apparently had an issue since then, as he comes into this off a 4-month layoff; was entered in an optional claimer in October, but that got rained off the turf, and now he resurfaces here; good sign that Rosario keeps the mount, but he has to run better than last time if he's to beat this tougher group; demand a price.

Has obviously relished added ground this year, now that his connections are focusing on marathon races; nearly upset the Louisville at 62-1 back in May; came back from a brief layoff this summer and has continued to run up to a similar level; won a competitive allowance race going 12F last time at Keeneland with a relentless rally from well off the pace; has to do better to beat this group, and he also needs to work out a trip, as his deep-closing style puts him at the mercy of pace; even at his best, others look a little faster and classier; leaning elsewhere.

Appeared to go off form in 2021, but he's experiencing a renaissance season this year; claimed back by Mike Maker at the end of last season, he seemed to appreciate stretching back out to marathon distances; earned a Grade 2 victory in the Mac Diarmida in March, and then registered a career-best 10:1 Beyer when finishing 3rd in the G1 United Nations over the summer; something obviously went wrong at Kentucky Downs two back, but he rebounded last time with a good effort in the Sycamore, getting up for 2nd with a late rush; possesses a versatile running style that can be adapted to most pace scenarios; certainly capable with his best effort.

Just missed in this race last year when he was a 3YO facing older rivals; arguably got left with a bit too much ground to make up, as he came with a late rush for 3rd; has returned to an improved horse this year; took him a few starts to reach his peak at the start of the season, but he has run well twice in a row against Grade 1 company in recent starts; closed well two back in the Sword Dancer, and then last time was pretty unlucky in the Turf Classic, as he got buried in traffic in deep stretch; finished just behind today's rival Astronaut, but surely ran the better race, all things considered; should be charging late as long as some pace develops up front; looks like the horse to beat.

Has primarily focused on shorter trips during his career, but he did run well when he tried 12F at Belmont last fall; has gone winless this season, including a couple of losses at short prices against weaker company; did show up with a surprisingly strong effort on dirt last time, notably stretching out to 10F; perhaps the longer distances are what he wants, and now he's stretching back out; still, would have to produce the best form of his career to merely hit the board against this group; prefer others on top.

Looked like his career was heading down the wrong path early this year, but he completely turned things around off the trainer switch to Tom Morley this summer; worked out great trips in those optional claiming and Lure victories, but he also showed up with some of the best efforts of his career; has finished off the board twice since then, but he's had excuses; didn't like give in the ground two back in a race dominated by a front-runner; then last time he never had a chance, going wide against a rail bias while also compromised by a slow pace; has to prove he can handle this marathon distance, but he figures to fly under the radar and can get a piece of this with his best effort.

Wasn't competitive with Soldier Rising in the Sword Dancer earlier this year, but he has handled a marathon trip in the past; recently he's held his own against some solid NY-bred competition, and last time he had no chance to close into a moderate pace behind a heavily-favored wire-to-wire winner; drew a tough post position for this and even his best effort may not make him quite good enough; though he has been in the best form of his career lately and could be a square price; some things to like.

MTO would have to be considered if this got rained off the turf; comes in off a career-best 98 Beyer, earned for a game victory going a one-turn mile last time; wasn't quite as successful going longer two back, and stamina would be the main concern if he competed here; there are also some runners within the main body of the field who have solid dirt form, so he wouldn't be catching the easiest field if this got transferred to the main track.

Colt by Constitution (19% with 2yo first-time starters) is the first foal from 2 for 17 Transaction Tax (both wins turf routes); sold for $140k after breezing 10.1 back in May, then didn't get started preparing for the debut until the beginning of October for Pletcher; threw in a couple of fast works earlier this month, including a :46.1 breeze from the gate two weeks ago; not one to overlook for top connections.
