CLOSER LOOK: This is the stakes debut for a filly who had an ideal first start at Fresno last month, racing within a length of the lead through the opening quarter-mile before taking command in the stretch. She was drawn toward the outside in that field, but has a tougher post in this field on the rail and could face early pressure.

The veteran in the field with five starts, she was a well-beaten fifth in the Pike Place Dancer Stakes at a mile on turf on Oct. 29 at 34-1. Her sprint form is so much better, and makes her a prospect in this field. One drawback is the lack of a win on a synthetic track. Her two victories have been on dirt.

Unraced in more than three months, she has a solid pattern of workouts in the last six weeks though none have been particularly quick. That largely follows a trend prior to her last two starts. This is a tough place for a comeback.

After a dynamite debut in May, this filly has yet to duplicate the effort, with troubled trips at Santa Anita in June and Golden Gate Fields in September. She was beaten by Majestic Oops after a slow start in an allowance race in September. With a clean break here, she can be a factor early.

This is the synthetic track debut for a filly who was a well-beaten third after a wide trip in the Pike Place Dancer Stakes at a mile on turf on Oct. 29. One of three runners in the field trained by Jonathan Wong, she won a maiden special weight race on turf at Del Mar in her debut. The performance would be good enough to contend in this field.
